

Hiller Fire Protection Celebrates 90 Years of Quality Service

Hiller Fire Protection, Inc. has celebrated several milestones in providing quality fire suppression and engineering solutions but few business highlights can match the significance of commemorating 90 years in business.

Since its establishment, the Hiller Companies have steadily grown and Hiller Fire Protection is now one of the leaders in the development, supply, and service of “Special Hazards” fire suppression and safety equipment.

The Hiller story begins with Hebert S. Hiller founding Hiller in 1919 with a single office in New Orleans where he pursued the commercial, industrial, and marine markets. Fast-forward to 2009, with offices in Alabama, Texas, Lafayette LA, New Orleans LA., Florida, Massachusetts, Virginia, South Carolina and, its corporate headquarters in Mobile Alabama. Hiller enjoys a strong reputation as an industry leader and as a progressive innovator. Work today includes extensive offshore fire protection, marine operations, and offshore oil rigs. Hiller’s sales are to marine, airlines, industrial, semi-conductor, Utilities and commercial customers on a worldwide basis.

Times have changed, but quality still valued

Technology has progressed, but choosing the right fire protection system for a particular hazard still requires experience.

Over its 90 years, Hiller has combined sound mechanical and electrical engineering practices, experience, and the latest in fire protection technology to create products and services of unrivalled excellence.

“Ninety years of experience gives us pause to think about our accomplishments but we are also looking forward to our future with great anticipation and a promise of continued commitment to our customers and the fire protection industry," says Peter L. Hanson, General Manager of Hiller's New England Regional offices.

Many divisions with unified goal

Each division of Hiller has a service organization that provides routine and emergency maintenance for the fire suppression and detection systems. They also service and recharge fire extinguishers for commercial buildings, restaurants, semiconductor facilities, industrial plants, oil platforms, and ships.

Hiller has design, supply, installation, and service capabilities for new, retrofit, and existing systems. Hiller's staff holds NICET certifications in special hazards and fire alarms. The Hiller Companies also provide full installation of the equipment, including necessary wiring, or simply the final termination and checkout.

Protection is provided for commercial buildings, hospitals, nursing homes, industrial plants, casinos, and commercial, cargo and military ships. Some Hiller divisions also supply and install sprinklers, closed-circuit television monitoring (CCTV), and access sound systems, nurse call, and other communication equipment.

"With growth, new products and services have been added over the years to better serve our growing customer base across our six main business segments," say Jim Kidd, Vice President of Hiller New England Fire Protection.
